

The Fuman Manifesto

Companion Note: Status, Intent, and Satirical Context

Status

The Fuman Manifesto is a satirical thought experiment, not a standard, policy document, product specification, technical framework, implementation guide, or FERZ offering. Its agencies, programs, requirements, metrics, incidents, and human-avian subject matter are fictional.

No human-avian integration program exists, is planned, or is endorsed by FERZ, Inc.

Intent

The document deliberately reproduces familiar features of governance publications: definitions, metrics, thresholds, taxonomies, audit requirements, incident analysis, stakeholder processes, and compliance architecture. Its structural completeness is intentional and central to the joke.

The fictional domain allows readers to examine governance form without first debating a real program or technology. Terms can validate other terms inside the same framework, creating a closed loop that is internally elaborate while remaining detached from practical function.

Why Satire?

Satire makes the machinery visible. The impossible subject matter removes any temptation to mistake administrative completeness for evidence that the underlying program is real or workable.

The core question is: What does a real governance framework provide that the Fuman Manifesto does not?

Intended Use

- Pedagogy: Examine governance architecture and compliance structure using a domain that requires no prior expertise.
- Calibration: Compare the fictional document's self-referential terms and evidence requirements with those of a real framework.
- Commentary: Discuss the difference between elaborate governance form and practical function.

The Manifesto is not intended for implementation.

Separation from FERZ Work

This publication is separate from FERZ's technical standards, products, and serious governance work. Nothing in the Manifesto defines, summarizes, or modifies a FERZ technical position.

Publication Status

Version 1.6.0 is a publication-maintenance release. It adds this status clarification and a reader notice, removes obsolete draft markings, corrects stale links, and standardizes citation metadata. It does not add substantive governance doctrine to the fictional framework.

Citation

FERZ, Inc. (2026). The Fuman Manifesto: A Governance Framework Diagnostic (Version 1.6.0).
<https://github.com/edmeyman/governance-diagnostics>

Attribution

FERZ, Inc.

<https://ferz.ai>